

2011 Sunnys Business Awards Preview

Builder has the best

ATTENTION to detail and engaging the best tradespeople are some reasons Three Sixty Building is a finalist in the Sunnys Business Awards.

"A builder is nothing without good tradespeople, so I've made sure I've got the best," Michael Fielding of Three Sixty Building said. A win in the MBA Northern NSW award led them to enter the Sunnys Business Awards.

Planto's tasty treats

A CHEF-LED kitchen, able to produce more than 250 meals without any loss in quality or presentation, is the reason the Plantation Hotel is a finalist in the Sunnys Business Awards.

Chef Neville Mott and his team are serving $10 burger and beer deals for the NRL finals and $15 Heineken pint and parmy (chicken parmigiana) for the Rugby World Cup big screen coverage.

Double-crumbed spring lamb cutlets are popular, as is the indoor children's play room with CCTV for supervision while families dine.

Good citizens

BEING good corporate citizens is just as important as running a good business for ETC, the local employment, training and business solutions provider.

Understandably, the ETC team is also proud of achieving a national number one ranking for how quickly it gets people in jobs and independent of Centrelink benefits.

Healthy community outlook

A COMMITMENT to health and the local community, rather than just selling gym memberships, is the focus at Coffs Coast Health Club.

Owner Duncan Marchant says this is what made them finalists in the local Sunnys Business Awards in their first year in business last year and again this year.

"We don't hire slick sales staff - we hire qualified personal trainers," Mr Marchant said.

They also offer free health seminars, health expos and open days.
